

a caring approach

Dr. Michael Horn can best be described as an accomplished plastic surgeon with an artistic eye. But patients meeting him for the first time just call him “a nice guy.” The fact that he is approachable and accessible means almost as much to his patients as his technical skill. And they get both.

Dr. Horn and his staff take their claim of being patient centered to the next level in terms of convenience, availability, experience and support. Their first-class facility off Michigan Avenue in downtown Chicago is home to a thriving practice dedicated to the cosmetic enhancement of the face and body. Dr. Horn works hard to establish a sense of trust and confidence with his patients. “Patients are surprised when I call them at home before and after their surgery.” Anxious about a procedure? Dr. Horn’s staff have all already had plastic surgery, so he matches patients due to have the same procedure with his internal ambassadors. “It gives patients a support network to call on if I am in surgery, or if they just want to identify with a peer.” Saturday and evening hours guarantee best times for busy professionals. His open-door policy, easygoing demeanor and excellent results all spell growth, yet Dr. Horn performs all surgeries himself rather than expand his practice and bring on another plastic surgeon. The result: many more patient-ambassadors willing to testify on behalf of their exceptional experience. 312-202-9000 or newbeauty.com/horn.

“I can do something positive for someone that they cannot do for themselves. This is what I should be doing.”

INSIDE INFORMATION

PRACTICE MAKES PERFECT

When Dr. Horn began his practice, he pledged that he would never become a jack-of-all-trades. At a time when many practitioners may be adding to their menu of services, he believes the secret to his success has been perfecting his expertise in a limited number of procedures. His focus remains on BREAST AUGMENTATION, FACIAL PROCEDURES, LIPOSUCTION AND TUMMY TUCKS. “You cannot train for a triathlon one day a week and expect good results,” he explains. To Dr. Horn, his specialization and repetition of procedures provide his patients with a winning combination. Aside from producing outstanding and predictable results, doing so allows him constantly to sharpen his skills. Working towards perfecting a handful of procedures has resulted in his developing surgical techniques that MINIMIZE SCARRING, SPEED RECOVERY, LESSEN BRUISING AND SHORTEN TIME under anesthesia. Dr. Horn admits that there are many ways potential patients can evaluate surgeons; however, for him, “the best surgeon is the one who most frequently performs a particular procedure.”
